THE JACKSPOT AMBER ALE, 5.8%

A medium bodied American Amber Ale, 6 – varieties of malts lend to the biscuit and toasty flavors with a hint of caramel. Well balanced and moderately hopped with fuggly hops accenting the rich flavors of this well round ale. 16oz.....$5.00

Stella Artois, 5.2%

Stella Artois is the result of hundreds of years of brewing expertise so it's worth just a few extra steps to ensure the best possible tasting experience for connoisseurs such as you. Before being poured, we always recommend it has been chilled to between 3-5°C and of course you should savour Stella Artois in its unique Chalice, the curves of which are designed to enhance the tempting taste and aroma. Take a sip. A malty middle and crisp finish should reveal the full, pleasantly bitter flavour that Stella Artois is known for and what makes it an ideal accompaniment for a variety of cuisines from around the world.

Meyer lemon, guava, tarragon, ripe honeydew, yellow delicious apples and ruby red grapefruit lead to a well-balanced palate of ripe melon and citrus, just enough fresh herbs to be varietally correct but finishing with crisp fruit on a moderately long finish.

Not explosive, but very well-made

This review is for the 2013 New Harbor Sauvignon Blanc. $16.50 offsale price in Sask. Good value in this no-mistaking for anything but Marlborough Savy white. Very in yo face green aromas of poached asparagus, peas, basil, pepe du chat, and papaya. Little stinky when first opened so let it waft off. Great crisp mouthfeel, almost a bit sweet on attack then finish's with juicy acid to clean up and keep yo mouth watering for some more. Not the most complex or focused but it fits the bill and gets points for value. Drink young. Tasted Feb '14.
